

$172,774.90 Was Mailed Out July 1 to Central Maine Power Company's 12,676 Stockholders

The 75th consecutive dividend of Central Maine Power Company, representing $172,774.90 was mailed out July 1 to the Company's 12,676 preferred stockholders. Practically every city, town and hamlet within the four boundaries of Maine will receive a part of this money.

Steady Dividends for 19 Years

When the present Central Maine Power Company began to generate a few hundred horsepower in the town of Oakland in 1899, it had only a mere handful of friends as back-

As the Company began to expand into Waterville and up and down the Kennebec and grew into a sure thing it went out and asked the loyal citizens of Maine for their financial support. It did this through the sale of its Preferred Stock.

Those who invested then not only saw the opportunity to help BUILD MAINE through developed water power, but an investment that ought to provide steady dividends as long as water flowed down hill.

For 19 years the faith of these first stockholders has been justified. In good times and bad, through war and peace, and the business vicissitudes of all these years, the earnings of Central Maine Power Company have always been enough to pay dividends and to have a margin left over.

A company that has stood this test ought to be able to pay dividends for all time to come.

The next quarterly dividend is due on October 1. According to the present rate of increase, about 500 more Maine people will become stockholders before then.

At least send in the coupon so that we may mail you more information about a security that is held by more Maine people than any other investment save government bonds.

FACTS ABOUT MAINE

No state has a more varied topography than Maine. It is 320 miles long, 210 miles wide at its widest part; has a total area of 33,040 square miles; has 2,465 lakes covering 3,200 square miles of water surface; four long, navigable rivers and 5,147 streams and small rivers; about 5,000,000 acres of timberland and 6,000,000 of farm land; 228 miles of direct sea coast line, but so notched with bays and inlets that it has a tidal line of about 2,400 miles, equal in length to one-half the entire Atlantic coast line of the United States.

Maine ranks high in manufacturing, farming and fisheries. As one of the most famous summer resort states in the Union, it has clearly won its right to the title, "Summer Playground of the Nation."

In area Maine lacks only 215 square miles of being as large as the other five New England states combined.

Aroostock, the county farthest north, contains 6,408 square miles, an area larger than that of Rhode Island and Connecticut combined.

The state is divided into 16 counties, contains 20 cities, 407 towns, 67 organized plantations and 174 unorganized communities.

The 1920 census credited Maine with 768,014 population, an average of 25.7 persons per square mile, the state ranking 35th in population in the United States.

Of the 20 cities and 407 towns in the 16 counties, 8 cities and one town (Sanford) have more than 10,000 each. Portland, the largest city, has more than 70,000. The other 12 cities, according to population, follow in this order: Lewiston, Bangor, Biddeford, Auburn, Augusta, Waterville, Bath, Westbrook, South Portland, Rockland, Old Town, Saco, Calais, Brewer, Gardiner, Belfast, Eastport, Ellsworth, Hallowell.

Of the lakes, Moosehead in Piscataquis county is the largest body of fresh water entirely within the borders of a single state. The Rangeleys and Grand Lake Stream series are the next largest lakes.

The highest elevation is Mt. Kathadin, a mile above sea level.

Lafayette National Park, on Mt. Desert Island, is the only national park east of the Mississippi River. It contains 10,000 acres. Mt. Cadillac, within the park, is the highest point of land on the entire Atlantic coast.

Old Orchard has the longest, hardest, smoothest stretch of beach on the North Atlantic coast, a natural landing field for aviators.

The average annual rainfall, evenly distributed, is 49.34 inches, which in the average depth of snow, equal to 6.91 inches of rainfall. So evenly distributed is the rainfall that severe droughts or damaging storms are exceedingly rare. The large wooded areas and hills in the state are a source of protection from windstorms.

Maine winters are not as severe as in corresponding latitudes in the interior states. The air in summer is devoid of the dry, scorching heat that abounds in treeless sections of the country and in densely populated cities. Summer nights are always cool.

Maine was the first section of the United States to be discovered, the first to be peopled, the first to hold religious worship, the first to erect a church, the first to build a home, the first to build a ship and the first to have a chartered city.

The first permanent settlement in Maine was made at Fort Mifflin in 1692, and was followed in 1623 by a permanent settlement at Saco.

In 1652 Maine came under the Massachusetts Colony.

In 1677 the Province of Maine between the Kennebec and Piscataqua Rivers was purchased by Massachusetts for 1,250 pounds sterling.

Maine was separated from Massachusetts in 1820.

The first governor of Maine was William King, a native of Scarborough, Cumberland County.

Maine has had one Vice-President, Hannibal Hamlin, who served with Abraham Lincoln, 1861-1865.

In its 105 years of statehood Maine has had 48 governors. Twenty-four sons of Maine have served as governors in other states. Thirty-nine natives of this state have served as presidents of colleges.

Nearly a million tourists visit Maine annually and many of them are so impressed by its natural attractions that they establish summer residences here. The state's increase in real estate value within the last ten years, by reason of purchases, development and building of homes by people from other states, has been nearly 500 percent, or more than twice the increase in resident real estate within the same period.

One hundred and sixty-five summer camps for boys' and girls are maintained in the state, with an attendance exceeding 7,500.

The Maine Publicity Bureau, Longfellow Square, Portland, will furnish on application folder containing general information about summer hotels and boarding places, recreational resorts, motor routes and sportsmen's camps.

Maine's seashore, lakeside and countryside abound in summer homes of people of prominence from other states.

While it cannot be expected that Maine with its 25,000 miles of highways and less population than that of the best developed states, has a percentage of smooth surface roads as are maintained in smaller and much more populated states of New England, yet Maine can rightfully boast of the greatest progress in road building in recent years, by reason of purchases, development and building of homes by people from other states, has been nearly 500 percent, or more than twice the increase in resident real estate within the same period.

Mr. and Mrs. Johns called on Mrs. Hulbert, also her aunt and niece, last week.

OLD BILL SAYS

My old Ford looked pretty rusty and I decided to put it well. I went down to Hutchins' store and bought some paint guaranteed to make it look like new. Now, you see, this Ford of mine if of the Vintage of 1915 and I thought that it would be going some to make it look like a new one with a paint.

I bought the paint and came home and dinner wasn't ready so I went to reading directions. It said to "apply with a Badger Hair Brush," then I went to look over my brushes, well, all I could find was just common paint brushes. I thought I was stuck till I went to hunting up Natural History to find out what Badgers were and where they inhabited, and so forth.

Well, I studied the Natural History books for two weeks and I didn't seem to be getting anywhere, still the old Ford needed painting and I was all at sea. Then I told the Old Woman I was going to find a Badger so I took my shot gun, plenty of grub and started out. I went down to the swamp back of the house and found some tracks that I thought might be made by Badgers, so I decided to follow them and followed them till sunset and camped. The next morning I set a good trap by day and followed those tracks. It was on snow so I could ramble right along. Well along about three o'clock the next day I came up to the animal. "Well," says I, "that's a Badger, a Badger as I ever expected to see," so I shot him, then I went to looking him over; thinks I to myself, it will be fine figuring to get hair enough out of that thing to make a paint brush. But I give up that idea and I had to and as I was hunting for hair on that thing I heard snow-shoes crunching along toward me and I looked up and there was Percy Brown looking at me. He says, "what are you doing, Bill, with that Hedge Hog?" I says, "Hedge Hog nothing, that is a Badger and I am going to make me a paint brush out of his hair." Well, he laughed at me and says, "if you can find any hair on him I'll help make that brush."

I thought that was a good offer so I searched him all over, then I didn't find a hair on him. There I was two days from home, money invested in paint and I made up my mind that Hutchins would have to settle the bill so I went to Hutchins and he paid two days' tramping and he hooted me out of the store and said he didn't sell brains and paint, too, didn't have all the brains he needed anyway. Well, I came home pretty well tuckered and discouraged and used just a paint brush and dabbed that old Ford over but it hasn't run decent since and everybody stares at me till I don't know whether they are in love with me or not.

Why Call

THEY couldn't understand! "Why call a coach—why confuse it with a Studebaker meeting?" "Surely it was better to name it the Special Six Coupe."

To be sure, the Special Six Coach is a sturdier in fine quality of material—with grade carpeting—and heavy decorative pulls to assist passengers in alighting.

To be sure, it is lacquer finished—stunning finish of Wyandotte green—above and Ponca green-gray below.

And, furthermore, to get a coach as roomy you must pay more than above the price of this car.

But the fact remains—that it carries lowest price at which a fine closed coach ever been sold on the world-famous Six chassis.

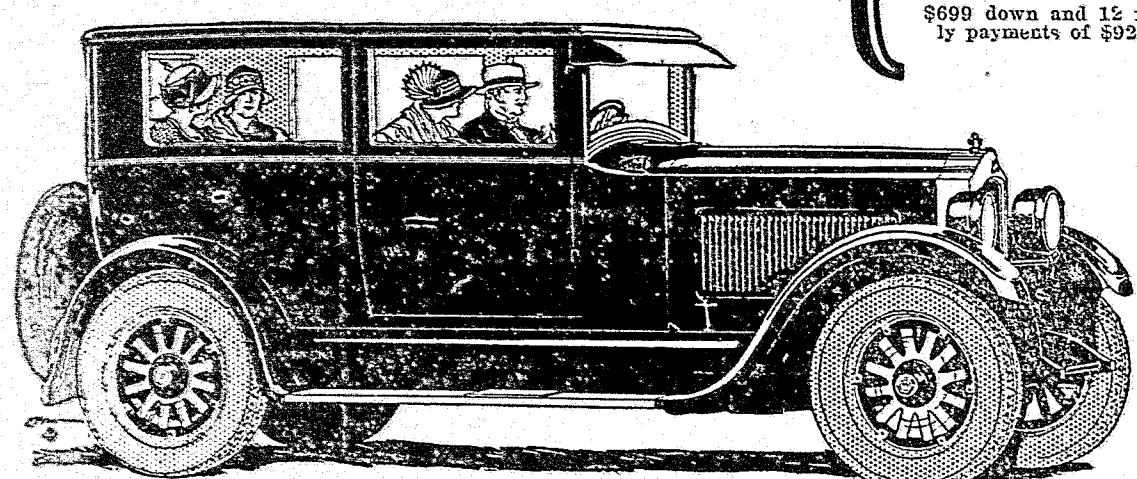

It is a coach—in price alone. But in a fine type of five-passenger coach.

From the very beginning, the coach has been an effort towards economy on the part of automobile manufacturers. But other manufacturers, Studebaker included, have built a coach without sacrifice of essential quality—and offer it to you at accepted coach price.

The reason for sedan quality at coach price

Studebaker builds all of its own closed—builds finer coaches than have been before—and builds them at a lower price because there is no outside body-maker to be included in the purchase price to this Special Six Coach is built completely body and chassis—in Studebaker's "one-profit" automobile.

Why Call It a Coach?

THEY couldn't understand! "Why call it a coach—why confuse it with cheap cars?" asked the dealers at a recent Studebaker meeting. "Surely it would be better to name it the Special Six Coupe."

To be sure, the Special Six Coach is upholstered in fine quality of material—with high-grade carpeting—and heavy decorative door panels to assist passengers in alighting.

To be sure, it is lacquer finished in two colors—beautiful Studebaker blue or a rich green finish of Wyandotte green-gray above and Ponca green-gray below.

And, furthermore, to get a coach as large and roomy you must pay more than $1,000 above the price of this car.

But the fact remains—that it carries the lowest price at which a fine closed car has ever been sold on the world-famous Special Six chassis.

It is a coach—in price alone. But in quality—five times of five-passenger coupe.

From the very beginning, the coach has been an effort towards economy on the part of automobile manufacturers. But, unlike other manufacturers, Studebaker has been able to build a coach without sacrifice in essential quality—and offer it to you at an accepted coach price.

The reason for sedan quality at coach price

Studebaker builds all of its own closed bodies—builds finer coaches than have been built before—and builds them at a lower cost—because there is no outside body-maker's profit to be included in the purchase price to you.

This Special Six Coach is built completely both body and chassis—in Studebaker plants. It is a "one-profit" automobile.

SUFFERED AFTER BIRTH OF BABY

Trouble Caused by Getting Up Too Soon. Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Taleville, New York.—"I thought it would interest you to know what benefit I have derived from taking your medicine. A few days after the birth of my third child I got up too quick. Then just before my fifth child was born I had inflammation of the bladder and displacement. Seeing your advertisement in a Liverpool (England) paper I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and that was the best confinement I had. Whenever I feel run down I always take the Vegetable Compound as a tonic. We have just removed from Brockville (Canada) so the medicine for me and I got it today. I would not be without it for any price and I recommend it to ladies around here because I feel so sure it will benefit any woman who takes it." Mrs. AGNES WIGNALL, Taleville, New York.

Women can depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve them from all their peculiar troubles. For sale by druggists everywhere.

BETHEL

Mrs. Blanche (Mills) Rolfe died June 29. She was the eldest child of Gilbert and Betsey Morrill Mills and was born in Bethel, Dec. 5, 1879. Her education was acquired in the town schools of Bethel and Gould Academy. She married George Rolfe and for a long time they lived in Bethel. Some years ago Mr. Rolfe, who was in the mill business, moved his family to another part of the state.

Their home at the time of Mrs. Rolfe's death, was in Readfield. Her health had been failing for some time, but her illness was not considered of a serious nature, until a few weeks ago. She was at St. Barnabas Hospital in Portland, when the end came.

Her husband, George Rolfe, and seven children, Miss Elva, Rexford, Ernest, Kenneth, Lawrence, Robert and Ruby, two granddaughters, Eleanor and Barbara, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Mills, a sister, Mrs. Ed. Rolfe and brother, George Mills, also a large circle of other relatives and friends were present at the funeral which occurred July 1st, at the home of her father, where her two eldest sons and two nephews acted as casket bearers. The service was a wonderful scriptural words of help and read most feelingly Tennyson's beautiful words "Crossing the Bar."

Burial was in the cemetery at West Bethel. The services at the grave were very impressive. The lines from the poem "She is not dead, she is just away" used by the minister and his tender voice as the last was a most comforting message to remain for all time with those bereft. Many beautiful flowers covered and surrounded her last resting place, given in loving memory by relatives and friends far and near.

HARM IN TOO MUCH SLEEP

Persistent opponents of summer time are never tired of asserting that it deprives people of their natural sleep. This is all very well; but nobody yet has defined when we ought to sleep and how many hours. Many people sleep far too much; and it is a well known scientific fact that excessive sleep diminishes the nervous energy and degenerates the small arteries and capillaries of the brain.

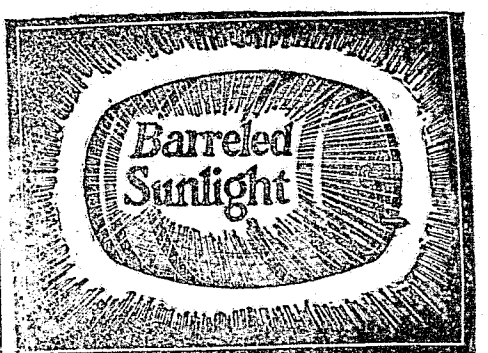

Sleeplessness is generally a sign of mental lethargy; neither Sandoz Panza nor the Pat Boy in Pickwick, outstanding examples of dozy sleepers, were noticeably brilliant. Sir John Sinclair roundly declares that too much sleep "blunts and destroys the senses, and renders both the body and mind unfit for action." Sir Hermann Weber, the author of Longevity and the Prolongation of Life, blames the habit of sleeping more than eight hours for the premature decay of the mental faculties.

Many men of active brain are satisfied with little sleep. John Wesley was up at 4 o'clock every morning. Immanuel Kant slept very little, remarking that much sleep exhausts energy and shortens life. The latter conclusion is borne out by the fact that many long-lived people spent but a short space of time in bed.

Sir John Sinclair slept only about four hours a night and lived to be 81. Sir Henry Thompson, who lived to be 80 years old, was a busy physician who saw patients all day and attended social gatherings every night. Yet he found time to write several large books on medical subjects, and he did this by being in his study at 6 every morning.

Enthusiastic barristers like Lord Reading and Lord Birkenhead were entertainingly "being entertained socially every night. Yet they would rise at 4 o'clock in the morning and do several hours' work on their briefs before going into court at 10—Vaughan Dryden in the Continental Edition of the London Mail.

Be sure and read the Intelligence Column. Many bargains are advertised each week.

A Bright Cheerful Kitchen

For the real mother and home-maker the kitchen, nursery and bathroom rank as the three most important rooms in the house, not only in sanitary arrangements but in beauty and comfort. White walls and woodwork should be kept a pure white in order to maintain other attractive and cheerful surroundings. Barreled sunlight is the ideal tint for white paint for this purpose. It is cheaper than enamel and much easier to apply, can be washed and won't need repainting for years. Contains no lead or varnish and dries with a hard, beautiful gloss.
